Executive Summary

The Government of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico has a stake in keeping track of the socioeconomic conditions of our people abroad. During the past decade, the number of people of Puerto Rican origin living in the United States outnumbered the population living in Puerto Rico for the first time ever. As a result, it is becoming increasingly important to know and understand the Puerto Rican diaspora living in the United States. The Puerto Rican Diaspora Atlas 2010 aims to fill this gap, by presenting the available data from the U.S. Census Bureau on the people of Puerto Rican origin living in the United States. The Atlas was developed as a collaborative project between the Puerto Rico Federal Affairs Administration and the Puerto Rico Institute of Statistics.

Summary of findings

- According to the 2010 Census, there were 4.6 million people of Puerto Rican origin living in the United States on April 1, 2010. This group represents about 9.2% of the Hispanic population in the United States, and they outnumber the number of persons living in Puerto Rico by nearly 1 million.
- The states with the highest population of Puerto Rican origin are New York, Florida, and New Jersey. The states with the largest percentage of Puerto Rican origin population are Connecticut, New York, and New Jersey. The cities with the largest Puerto Rican origin populations are New York, NY, Philadelphia, PA, and Chicago, IL.
- According to American Community Survey, for the period 2006-2010, Minnesota (34.1%) and District of Columbia (61.1%) have the highest percentage of Puerto Rican origin populations with at least a bachelor's degree. Pennsylvania (8.4%) and Connecticut (8.6%) have the lowest percentage of Puerto Rican origin populations with at least a bachelor's degree.
- Puerto Ricans living in Connecticut ($67,740), New Jersey ($69,811), and Maryland ($70,647) have the highest median household incomes, whereas the states with lowest median household incomes are Mississippi ($37,881), West Virginia ($38,380), and Arkansas ($39,267).

Introduction

The 2010 Puerto Rican Diaspora Atlas is a reference document for the analysis of the Puerto Rican origin population of the United States, using data from the U.S. Census Bureau. The Government of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico has a vested interest in keeping track of the socioeconomic conditions of our people abroad.

In the 2010 Census, the Puerto Rican origin population of the United States was estimated to be 4.6 million persons or about 1.5% of the total population of the United States. After Mexicans, Puerto Ricans in the United States are the second largest Hispanic group (Ennis et. al., 2012). Additionally, by 2010, the Puerto Rican origin population of the United States outnumbered the population living in Puerto Rico.

Historical background

The origin of large Puerto Rican population concentrations in the United States can be traced to the early twentieth century. The approval of the Jones Act (1917) in Puerto Rico, which designated the inhabitants of Puerto Rico as American citizens, provided the legal conditions to encourage the movement of Puerto Ricans to the continental United States. Moreover, initiatives such as those implemented by the Puerto Rico Department of Labor and Human Resources through the Bureau of Employment and Migration (1947) in New York, served to promote the mass movement of workers, mostly of the agricultural sector, to the United States.

In the early 1950s, the Puerto Rico Planning Board identified that migration was to the island a "great exhaust valve to relieve population pressure during the initial stage of the development of Puerto Rico" (Picó, 1952). The Government of Puerto Rico continues to develop efforts for the promotion of cultural activities scientific, economic, and civic in order to "make known and enhance the image of the People of Puerto Rico". In 1979, for example, the Puerto Rico Federal Affairs Administration (PRFAA) was created with the authority to "establish and maintain communication links with local and national groups with entities in various Hispanic communities across the United States".

Did the Puerto Rican Population Increase between the 2000 and 2010 Census?

The 2010 Census Questionnaire expanded the concept of "Spanish/Hispanic/Latino" (previously used in the 2000 Census) to include people who consider themselves to be of "Hispanic, Latino or Spanish origin."

The addition of the word "origin" to the census questionnaire appears to have notably impacted the results for Puerto Ricans. Whereas in the 2000 Census there were 3.4 million Puerto Ricans in the United States, in the 2010 Census a total of 4.6 million people of Puerto Rican origin were identified.

Ignoring methodological differences, this would represent an implausible increase of 1.2 million Puerto Ricans or 35% of the Puerto Rican population in the United States. Data users must be made aware of this methodological change when comparing results for the 2000 and 2010 Census.

That said, there is very little doubt that the Puerto Rico population in the United States increased between the 2000 and 2010 Census, as a result of relatively elevated levels of outward migration from Puerto Rico during the decade.

Demographer José Vázquez Calzada (1989) interpreted the migration of the Puerto Rican population from the island to the continental United States in the period after the Second World War as one of the largest population exodus of this century. Jorge Duany (2003) suggested that the case of Puerto Rico, which has experienced prolonged and massive population movements, is similar to what Ireland experienced in the second half of the nineteenth century.

The above highlights the relevance of the study of the Puerto Rican population in the diaspora, as a phenomenon very particular in the hemisphere. This topic is of greater relevance and interest when reflecting on growing Hispanic population in the United States, and the role of Puerto Ricans in this process.

Demographic Summary of the Puerto Rican Origin Population in the United States

The list of the states with the top ten largest Puerto Rican origin populations remained the same between the 2000 Census and the 2010 Census, with only a slight difference in the ranking order[1]. While New York in absolute terms continues to have the largest Puerto Rican origin population, in relation to the state's overall population size, Connecticut houses the largest percentage of Puerto Rican origin population within a state. In Connecticut, the Puerto Rican origin population represents over 7 percent of Connecticut's overall state population.

While in small states, such as Rhode Island and Hawaii, the Puerto Rican origin population can number less than 50 thousand persons, in relative terms they have higher percentages of Puerto Rican origin population than states like Pennsylvania, the state with the fourth largest Puerto Rican origin population.

Top Ten States with the Largest Puerto Rican Origin Population in 2010
1)	New York	1,070,558
2)	Florida	847,550
3)	New Jersey	434,092
4)	Pennsylvania	082
5)	Massachusetts	266,125
6)	Connecticut	252,972
7)	California	189,945
8)	Illinois	182,989
9)	Texas	130,576
10)	Ohio	94,965

Top Ten States with Largest Percentage of Puerto Rican Origin Population in 2010

2)	New York	5.5%
3)	New Jersey	4.9%
4)	Florida	4.5%
5)	Massachusetts	4.1%
6)	Rhode Island	3.3%
7)	Hawaii	3.2%
8)	Pennsylvania	2.9%
9)	Delaware	2.5%
10)	Illinois	1.4%

While 70 percent of the 1.2 million new Puerto Rican origin persons in the United States reside in those states with the largest Puerto Rican origin populations.

Six of the top ten states with the highest percentage of Puerto Rican origin population growth are in the Southern Region of the United States.

The Puerto Rican origin population in Springfield, MA and Hartford, CT make up approximately one third of their cities populations. One fourth of the population of Allentown, PA is Puerto Rican. Puerto Ricans there now compose 13 percent of the city's population

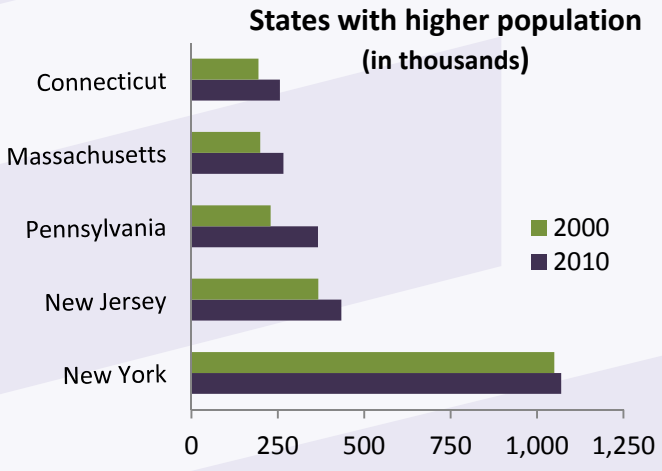

[1] In specific, between 2000 and 2010, California's Puerto Rican origin population surpassed Illinois' as the seventh largest Puerto Rican origin population in the United States.

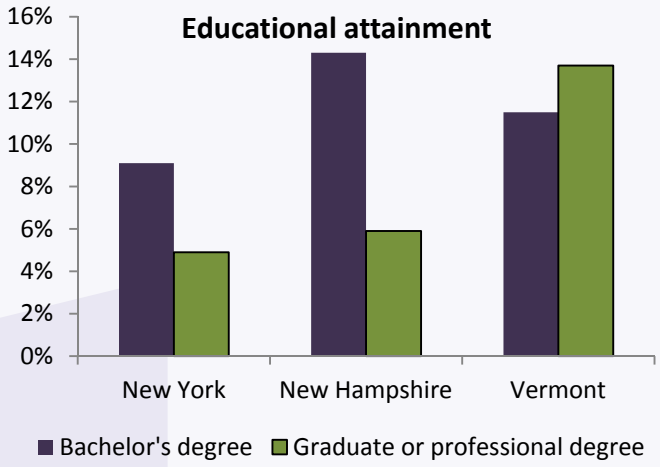

a) North East Region

The North East region of the United States is made up of the following 9 states: Connecticut, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Maine, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Vermont. Five of these states are among the top 10 states with the largest Puerto Rican origin population in absolute terms. The North East region serves as home to more than half of the Puerto Rican origin persons living in the United States.

Top Ten Cities with the Largest Puerto Rican Origin Population in 2010
1)	New York, NY	723,621
2)	Philadelphia, PA	121,643
3)	Chicago, IL	102,703

8)	Orlando, FL	31,201
9)	Boston, MA	30,506
10)	Allentown, PA	29,640

Within the North East region, whereas New Hampshire has the highest percentage of Puerto Rican origin persons with a bachelor's degree (14.3%) followed by Vermont (11.5%), Vermont has the highest percentage of Puerto Rican origin persons with a graduate or professional degree (13.7%). Less than 6% of the Puerto Rican origin persons living in New York and New Hampshire have a graduate or professional degree.

For the period 2006-2010, the Puerto Rican origin population in New Jersey enjoyed the highest median household income in the North East region with $69,811 while Maine had the lowest median household income with $46,993.

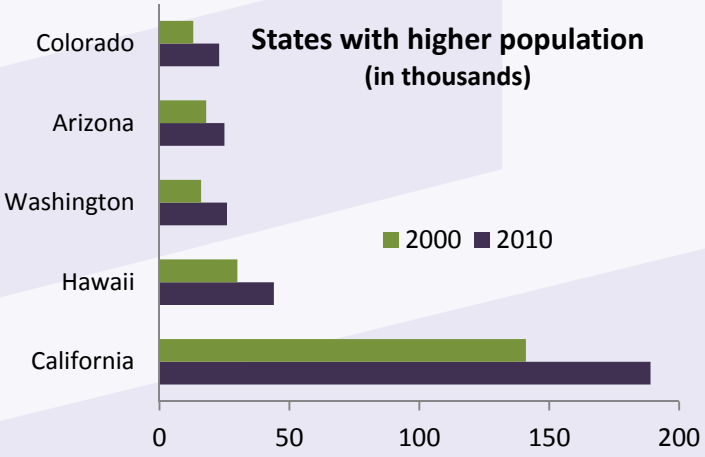

State	Median household income	Margin of error
Maine	$46,933	+/-457
Pennsylvania	$50,398	+/-158
Vermont	$51,841	+/-447

Massachusetts	$64,509	+/-344
Connecticut	$67,740	+/-381
New Jersey	$69,811	+/-309

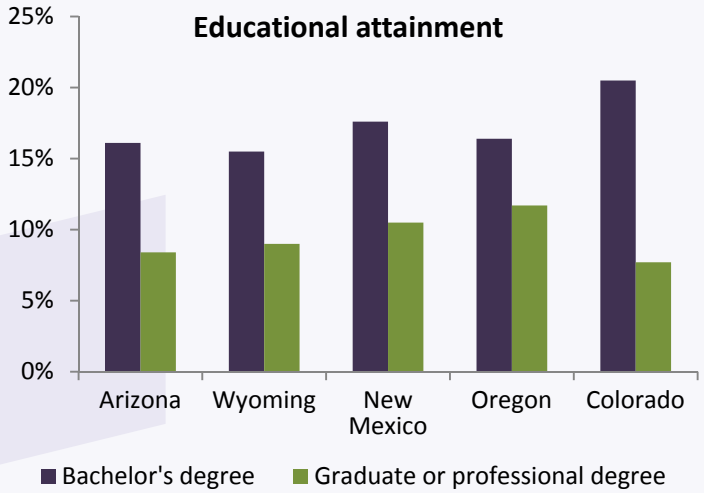

b) West Region

The West region of the United States is made up of Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming. These 14 states serve as home to 8 percent of the Puerto Rican origin population living in the United States. Within the West region, California has the largest Puerto Rican origin population, whereas Nevada experienced the highest growth rate of the Puerto Rican origin population (35.1%).

Within the West region, Arizona, Wyoming, New Mexico, Oregon, and Colorado have the highest percentages of Puerto Rican origin populations over 25 years and above with at least a bachelor's degree. Among these, Colorado (20.5%) and New Mexico (17.6%) had the highest percentage of Puerto Rican origin population with a bachelor's degree. Oregon (11.7%) and New Mexico (10.5%) had the highest percentage of Puerto Rican origin population with a graduate or professional degree.

For the period 2006-2010, Alaska had the highest median household income with $66,521, whereas New Mexico had the lowest median household income with $43,820.

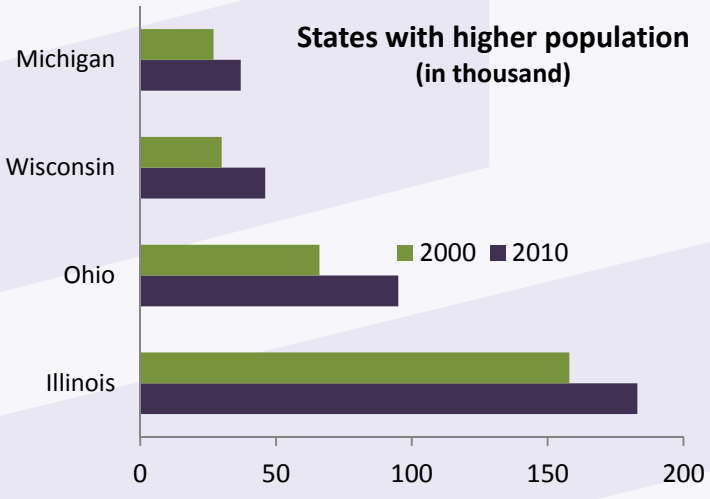

State	Median household income	Margin of error
New Mexico	$43,820	+/-386
Montana	$43,872	+/-408
Idaho	$46,423	+/-367

Washington	$57,244	+/-261
California	$60,883	+/-150
Hawaii	$66,420	+/-603
Alaska	$66,521	+/-642

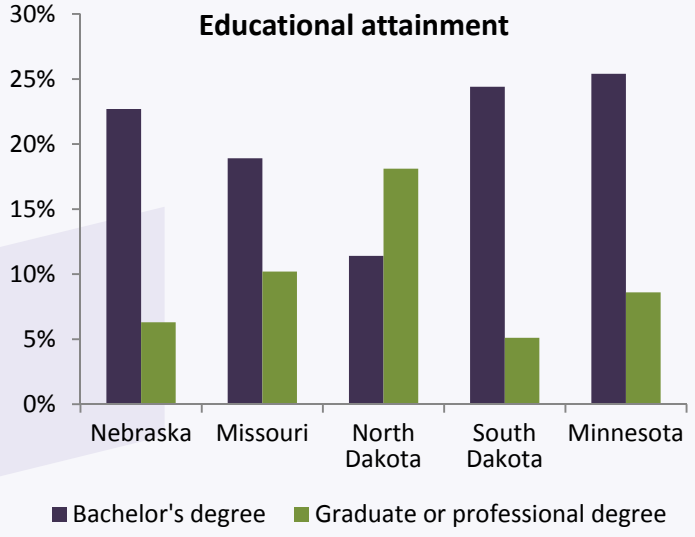

c) Midwest Region

The Midwest region of the United States is made up of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, and Wisconsin. These 12 states serve as home to nearly 9.5 percent of the Puerto Rican origin population in the United States. Seven states have a population of over 10,000 persons.

Within the Midwest region, Nebraska, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Minnesota have the highest percentage of Puerto Rican origin population over 25 years and above with at least a bachelor's degree. Among these, Minnesota (25.4%) and South Dakota (24.4%) had the highest percentage of Puerto Rican origin populations with a bachelor's degree. North Dakota (18.1%) and Missouri (10.2%) had the highest percentage of Puerto Rican origin population with a graduate or professional degree.

For the period 2006-2010, Minnesota had the highest median household income with $57,243 while Missouri had the lowest median household income with $46,262.

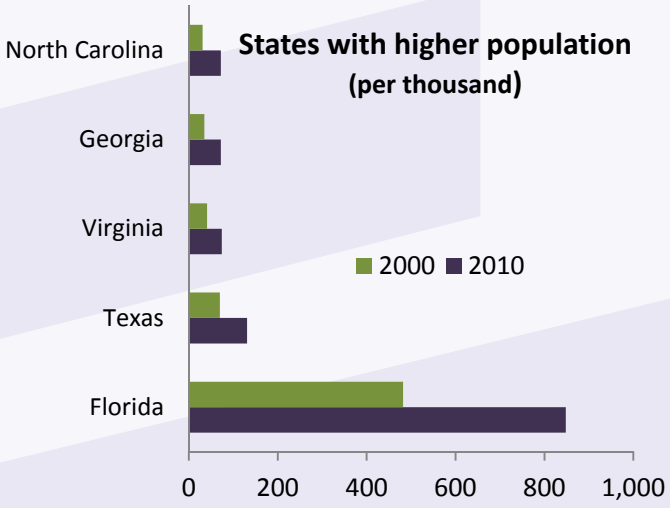

State	Median household income	Margin of error
Missouri	$46,262	+/-177
South Dakota	$46,369	+/-395
North Dakota	$46,781	+/-452
Ohio	$47,358	+/-162

Kansas	$49,424	+/-307
Wisconsin	$51,598	+/-143
Illinois	$55,735	+/-210
Minnesota	$57,243	+/-187

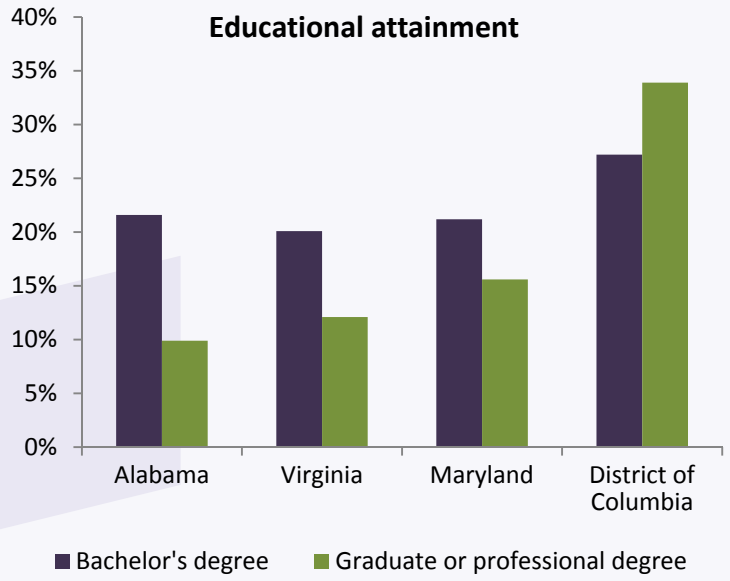

d) Southern region

The Southern region of the United States is made up of Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia. Nearly 30 percent of the Puerto Rican origin population living in the United States calls the South home. Thirteen states have a Puerto Rican origin population of over 10,000 persons.

Alabama, Virginia, and Maryland have the highest percentage of Puerto Rican origin population over 25 years and above with at least a bachelor's degree. In the District of Columbia, 61.1% of the Puerto Rican origin population has at least a bachelor's degree.

For the period 2006-2010, Maryland had the highest median household income within the Southern region with $70,647, whereas Mississippi had the lowest median household income with $37,881.

State	Median household income	Margin of error
Mississippi	$37,881	+/-333
West Virginia	$38,380	+/-329
Arkansas	$39,267	+/-283
Kentucky	$41,576	+/-210
Alabama	$42,081	+/-183
